

Invisible Protection for 3 Different Species of Timber

Taking care of your timber

Reclaimed timber protected with Waterkote® 2K Bare Timber.

Environmentally conscious home owners of a beachside dwelling in Clovelly, NSW, Australia used reclaimed timber as a sustainable flooring option for their ground floor.

This resulted in a collection of 3 different species of timber being used adding lots of character to their living space. However, they needed a protective coating that would prolong the life of all 3 types of timbers while bringing out the natural beauty of the Jarrah, Cypress and Baltic.

To achieve the desired look the contractor chose Urethane Coatings, Waterkote® 2K Bare Timber, a non-hazardous, non-yellowing coating suitable for various timber species which brings out the natural beauty of the timber and results in a silky satin finish that would rival any designer floor.

The residents weren't disappointed they had a top end finish while using reclaimed timber and a non-hazardous product to protect and prolong its life.
